DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 30 January 2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues:

Embodiments of the present invention relate to the practical application of producing sounds from digital audio signals, typically but not exclusively music and, typically but not exclusively, as part of a real-time performance. As described in the specification, producing sounds under such conditions encounters several challenges, including but not limited to producing sounds of sufficient quality in real-time under performance conditions and/or producing such sounds with equipment of moderate cost- Applicants submit that the production of audible sounds from digital information fully meets the standards for a useful, tangible and concrete process.

Examiner respectfully disagrees. Applicant asserts that "the production of audible sounds from digital information fully meets the standards for a useful, tangible and concrete process." However, claim 1 does not recite and thus is not limited to "the production of audible sounds from digital information." As a result, the argument is not persuasive, the claim still does not claim a practical application by producing a useful, tangible and concrete result and thus the rejection is maintained.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 1 – 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Regarding Claims 1 – 9, Claims 1 – 9 and 16 – 18 fit into the statutory categories of a machine or a process. However, the claimed subject matter is directed to the judicial exception of an abstract idea. The claim is directed to a computer program which has been held to be nothing more than an abstract idea. This is further evidenced by claim 10. An abstract idea is a non-statutory judicial exception. Since it fits a judicial exception, one must examine to determine if there is a practical application either by a transformation of a physical article or a useful, tangible concrete result. In the current presentation of the claim, neither of these practical applications are met.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 10 – 13 are allowed.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
